I chose the Xavier University of LA PGY1 Pharmacy Residency program due to their large ambulatory care component, teaching certificate opportunity, and their devotion to serving the underserved. I have developed a family at Xavier, and I trust them to continue forming me into a competent and compassionate pharmacist and leader. I plan to pursue a PGY-2 Health System Pharmacy Administration Residency as well as obtain my master's degree in public health or health administration. My ultimate goal is to serve in an underserved a clinic as an Ambulatory Care pharmacist and to be a professor in a college of pharmacy.

I believe that giving back creates a virtuous cycle that advances the success of society as a whole. I knew my passion for serving underrepresented communities would be fulfilled in an ambulatory care residency in which Xavier University's program perfectly aligned. Upon completion of my PGY-1 residency I will obtain board certification in ambulatory care or geriatrics. In addition, I aspire to obtain a career in an outpatient setting and potentially work in academia along my journey to owning an assistant living facility.

I chose Xavier's residency program because I love serving the underserved populations. The mission of the college of pharmacy lines up with my vision and goals. I desired a residency program that was going to challenge me and help me grow personally and professionally. I am more than confident that this program will launch me to the next level. After this year, I see myself being a more confident health professional. Although I am currently unsure of my future plans, I am looking forward to either pursuing a PGY2 residency or career as a clinical pharmacist. I am confident I will be prepared for either opportunity once this year is finished.

I chose to complete my PGY1 Residency at XULA because this institution was founded on the exact principles that I live my life by, leadership and service. This program has an emphasis on ambulatory care, which is the type of clinical pharmacist I strive to be. My goal is to gain a plethora of experiences in ambulatory clinics which will strengthen me as a clinician and further my professional goals. I am also excited about the opportunity to teach and precept students; and I love the family dynamic at Xavier University of Louisiana!

PRECEPTOR SPOTLIGHT

Chayla Stanton-Robinson, PharmD, BCACP

Practice Site: Daughters of Charity Services of New Orleans-Carrollton

Specialty Area: Ambulatory Care

Education: University of Iowa College of Pharmacy

Postgraduate Training:

- PGY-1 Community Pharmacy Residency: University of Iowa College of Pharmacy
- Certificate training programs in Medication Therapy Management and Diabetes Care

At my practice site, I currently manage patients with hypertension and diabetes under a collaborative practice agreement (CPA). I will also see patients for medication therapy management and smoking cessation follow-up. For those patients that I see under my CPA, this means I am able to directly adjust all related medications and order necessary laboratory tests in order to manage their disease states more effectively. I am able to bill for all of those services, so I'm currently in the process of working with my clinic to determine the financial value I have added since starting in October 2017.

At DCSNO, the main project I am working on is an NIH grant that will help to determine the impact of pharmacist-led interventions on patients with diabetes that also have other risk factors for metabolic syndrome. Within the College of Pharmacy, I am currently a co-advisor for Kappa Psi and the new class advisor for the P1 class (Class of 2023). I am also working to help establish interprofessional connections between students in the College of Pharmacy and the upcoming students in the new Physician Assistant Program here at Xavier University.

My advice to residents and students is to remember that pharmacy is a small community! The connections you make with your fellow students, faculty, and other members of the profession can truly last a lifetime. Use every opportunity to build yourself as a practitioner and clinician and give yourself the best chance at success!

Health Awareness: Breast Cancer

October is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month! Breast cancer is a disease that plagues our community. This is our opportunity to honor those facing this disease. To encourage and educate Breast Cancer Awareness in our community, Xavier University College of Pharmacy is proudly participating in National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Pharmacists have the ability to educate our friends, family, and community on the signs and symptoms of breast cancer. Encourage the use of self-examination and educate on the importance of annual mammograms.
